Kent County's Poor House Finest in the State.

DESCRIPTION OF THE HOME

Modern Ideas of Classification Are Embodied in Ity Construction-A Public Building Within Its Appropriation.

finest poor house in slichigan. Wayne It stands on a moderate rise of ground a good distance from the road and the location is fine for a gradual slope of hawn, which can be kept up by the pumps and hose of the institution. The building has a main part 181; feet long by 40 feet wide, from the rear of which extend three wings 70x25 feet. It is three stories high and an attic, and is covered by a steep state roof with gables, which give a harmonious effect. It is rigid frames in the mark of the most rigid and under its use found it just the thing and under its use had a speedy and perfect recovery. Try a sample bottle at our expense and learn for yourself just how good a thing found it just the thing and under its use found it just the thing and under its use found it just the thin It has stone foundations and white brick waits. The central part of the main building projects somewhat and is the residence of the keeper and fam-By. Over the main entrance are the ports, "Kent County Home, 1892."

Caste Among Paupers, The building throughout is designed to carry out the practice of classifying, both as to sex and as to degrees of capacity and incorrigibility. In the cenmain building are wire gales separating the sexes. They have no need of mingling together except in meetings, etc., for which a chapet hall is provid-ed in the central wing. The basement or ground floor contains the kitchen, laundry and engine rooms, store rooms, smoking room, women's sitting room, bath rooms, two small dining rooms and several wards and small sleeping rooms. The appliances in the kitchen and laundry are of the most modern character and considerable of the work will be done by the women inmates Besides the boiler which furnishes the steam heat "there is a separate boiler and pump, a laundry engine and a gas making machine. The floors are of concrete and maple. The inmates who will live on this floor are of the ob-atreperous, or very weak minded

The main floor will be devoted to better classes of dependents. The keeper's spartments open into it at the center and the chapel hall at the rear ade. It has dining and sitting rooms, bath rooms, wards and single rooms, all of which are well lighted and convehient, as are all the rooms. The third floor contains two hospital rooms, a number of single rooms for the sick, besides wards in the wings, a nursery, etc., as on the other floors. The attic is suitable for dividing into sooms in the distant future, is nicely loored and now contains only water anks at each end.

The Keeper's Quarters,

n the first and second floors on either West Bridge streets. of the house is complete in itself and is solated from the main building, but is yet in the center of the establishment nd overlooking the farm. The county physician has a dispensary off the main entrance. There are oak stairways from top to bottom at each end, besides a wide staircase from the main entrance, and there are in all seven entrances. The ventuating appliances are thorough in every part, hot and cold water and bathaou all floors, with improved appliances for removing dust and impurities to the basement.

A peculiarity of the building is that is has exceeded the $25,000 appropri-ated for it by only $2,000, while the extras include penciling the brick work, changing the floors in the basement and outerns, a well, flooring the entire attic, putting in the tanks and plumbing in the roof of the building and covering all the walls, which are of sand finish, with plastico at an expense of $606. Without the extras the appropriation would have a surplus. The entire expense, including furnishings, will come inside of 000. No bonds were issued and the building has been paid for as finished. New bedding is being purchased throughout and there is little in the crowded little old building worthy of taking into the new. Who Will Live There,

There are now eighty and the new building would accommodate 250. The city has a large number of dependents in hospitals and elsewhere which it house as soon as they can be accommo dated. They will be charged for by

The committee of supervisors in charge of the work are Nichol D. Emmons of Wyoming, Charles E. Hogadone of the Ninth ward and John Kinmay of Walker. They will report compiction of the work at the coming session of the board of supervisors and plication to all agents of D., G. H. & the building will be turned over to the M. and T., S. & M. Railway. Aunt Setner Lots, an aged but vivatwenty-four long years, remarked very snappiry to the reporter for The please you for bread or pastry.
